Part V: Institutional Arrangement

Thank you Mr. Co-Facilitator,

We have the honour to align ourselves with others concerning the establishment of the Conference of Parties (COP) as dedicated body like in relevant MEAs, as the main decision and governing body of this instrument.

In addition, the governing body should be composed of representatives of all members and that the instrument should provide for attendance and participation by observers in the meetings of the body, with the functions as were identified in the Paragraph 58 of the Synthesis Report.

The body should also prioritize inclusivity, fairness and the acknowledgement of common but differentiated responsibilities among members. Achieving these principles requires adopting all decisions by consensus, since it will also creates a strong sense of commitment towards the shared responsibilities and common goals.

Furthermore, we would also like to be proponent for the establishment of subsidiary bodies under the COP, such as:
First, Monitoring and Review of Effectiveness Committee which will task to periodically assess and evaluate collective progress in achieving the objectives of the instrument. The committee could provide recommendations and guidance to the governing body regarding how to improve progress in achieving the objectives.

Second, Scientific, Technical and Socioeconomic Committee with a mandate to address technical and scientific issues and issues relating to technological innovations, as well as to assess the impacts of policy interventions or any other proposed initiatives, with potential task refer to Para 70 and 71 of the Synthesis Report.

Third, Implementation and Compliance Committee in order to promote the implementation of, and review compliance with, all provisions of the Instrument. It is designed to facilitate compliance in a non-confrontational manner, non-punitive, will pay particular attention to national capabilities and circumstances and should not be result-oriented based only on the targets, but should also consider the process undertaken by the members.

Therefore, should there be any identified ineffectiveness in the implementation of this instrument, the cooperation mechanisms established (such as financing, capacity building, technical assistance, and transfer of technology) could help the members’ individual efforts.

Furthermore, we're of the view that the composition of subsidiary bodies need to consider geographical and developing country representation, expertise as well as gender balance.

The COP, subsidiary bodies and members, in this regard, will be supported and assisted by a Secretariat in the implementation of the Instrument, with possible functions as identified in paragraph 85 of the Synthesis Report as well as other functions as assigned by the decisions of the COP.

Before I conclude, I would like to reiterate our concern to a particular member that keeps on sounding the “one size fits all” policy, and put aside the reality of Common but Differentiated Responsibility and Respective Capabilities.
We are greatly convinced that such approach does not fit to address a diverse and multifaceted world and denies the existing inequalities, as well as divergent challenges and capabilities of members. It would be much appreciated if the particular member may reconsider their views and express more constructive engagement to other members to ensure a smooth progress in our deliberations.

Thank you.

Intersessional Meetings

Thank you Mr. Co-Facilitator,

Indonesia wants to reiterate our intervention in the morning session that Intersessional should be conducted inclusively with the participation of all members and the involvement of related stakeholders including experts’ group.

This intersessional work is important in order to discuss or progress the pending matters during the INC3 meeting, especially concerning the primary plastic polymers, chemicals and polymers of concern, problematic and avoidable plastic products, extended producer responsibility, existing plastic pollution as well as just transition.

Thank you.
