Statement in group 2 (part III and IV of zero draft)

Thanks for giving Jordan the floor, regarding financing, it goes in parallel with the mitigation. If we are going to have a strong convention, we need to put strong mitigation in parallel. We need to have also a strong regime for capacity building and technology transfer, as well as financing. In this regard, we believe that we need to have this strong convention and comprehensive convention. That's why from now we need to plan for a good program for capacity building and technical assistance and technology transfer as well as for financing. That's why... I think our colleagues from Saudi Arabia are suggesting that we need to divide the capacity building and technology transfer, because if we are going to the content of the national plan that we are going or suggesting to have, I think a lot of new terminology that they are there, and not all the developing countries, they are aware of this technology and approaches. And if we would like to have, as I said, strong convention and comprehensive convention, for example, I am talking about my country, product design and performance. Eco design still is very new terms and we need to have very right capacity buildings to improve this programs among our countries, as well as the extended producer responsibility. I am following this program since three years. I am still not...comprehensively understand what's going on in the extended producer responsibility. That's why I think we need to concentrate our efforts in the right direction if we would like to have good convention and would like to be this convention implemented. That's why from the beginning we need to design our capacity building program and technology transfer in a right way. If this is following the next financing arrangement. and that's why we are supporting the option one. This is by size, this convention, it will be very huge. We are talking about 100 million of waste from plastic and that's why I think we are supporting the option one and even plus, as we did in Minamata, we have a financial mechanism plus and here we are supporting this option. Thank you.
